Custom Manufacturing & Restoring Furniture

Correctional Industries will sit down with individuals or organizations to custom design any furniture piece. They have experience making custom desks, tables, book cases and more using high quality wood with special features like inlays and handmade knobs and handles.

In addition, Correctional Industries restores and refurbishes your furniture to preserve history and save the environment by keeping usable furniture from crowding landfills. This also saves organizations funds compared to purchasing new.

Many wooden pieces can be stripped, repaired and restored. Any previously upholstered furniture can look and feel brand new with the replacement of the foam and fabric. Every restoration project is individually priced according to the size of the project and amount of repairs needed.

Automotive Operations

Automotive Operations

Delaware Correctional Industries garage operation is conducted from James T. Vaughn Correctional Center. Future plans are to have multiple shops throughout the state.

Many of the DCI motor pool staff and inmate workers are ASE (Automotive Service Excellence) certified in the various areas of automotive repair and diagnostics. This certification will provide the inmate with the proper credentials to successfully acquire a job in the automotive repair field upon completion of his sentence.

Motor Pool services are only offered to Government Agency vehicles at this time.

In testimony of DCI's success, the OMB Fleet Services Director has stated that, were it possible, he would direct all of the state's vehicle repairs to the DCI's garages.

This new technology provides more versatility in stock sizes, and enable DCI to offer additional products to its customers. The easy-to-use digital functions decrease set up times and greatly improve production times. The new right angle folder allows easier and quicker bindery functions in a fraction of the time vs. the old technology.

In addition, new upgrades to all the pre-press equipment and software packages, like Creative Suites Design, QuarkXPress and CorelDraw, will further streamline workflow and provide customers with reduced production times without sacrificing DCI's high quality standards. The combination of state of the art software and direct to plate technology places DCI among the elite printing companies in the area.
